About This Test

Serum Gastrin Test measures the level of gastrin, a hormone produced by the stomach lining that regulates acid production for digestion. Gastrin stimulates the stomach's parietal cells to release hydrochloric acid, which helps break down food and absorb nutrients. This test is crucial when diagnosing conditions linked to abnormal acid production. Zollinger-Ellison Syndrome (ZES): Gastrin-secreting tumors (gastrinomas) in the pancreas or duodenum cause high gastrin levels and excessive stomach acid, leading to ulcers. Chronic Atrophic Gastritis: Low acid production due to damaged stomach lining can increase gastrin levels.
