About This Test

Here's a summary of what each component measures in the context of cardiovascular health: 1. Apolipoprotein A (Apo A): Measures levels of HDL cholesterol, indicating protective effects against heart disease. 2. Apolipoprotein B (Apo B): Measures levels of LDL cholesterol and other atherogenic particles, reflecting cardiovascular disease risk. 3. Apolipoprotein A1/B Ratio: Assesses the balance between protective (Apo A1) and harmful (Apo B) lipoproteins, providing insights into cardiovascular risk. 4. Lipid Profile: Includes total cholesterol, LDL, HDL, and triglycerides, offering a comprehensive overview of lipid levels and cardiovascular health risk. Together, these measurements help evaluate lipid metabolism and cardiovascular disease risk.
