About This Test

A phenytoin (Dilantin/Eptoin) level measures the concentration of phenytoin in the blood. Phenytoin is an antiepileptic drug used to control seizures. Monitoring its levels ensures therapeutic efficacy while avoiding toxicity. Therapeutic ranges are crucial as low levels may lead to uncontrolled seizures, while high levels can cause side effects like dizziness, ataxia, and even severe toxicity. Regular monitoring helps maintain appropriate dosing, ensuring patient safety and effective seizure management.
